THANKS

I would like to thank Tesfaye Alene from the development department of the Ethiopian Orthodox church in Kone for helping me with all the practical arrangements and for excellent advice and guidance.

Thanks to Mulugeta Abate, who has been my trusty interpreter in Kone. Without you I wouldn't have been able to communicate with Kassa's family.

A big thanks goes to Stine Leth-Nissen, who has been reading in the wings, and DanChurchAid, for giving me the opportunity to write this book.

I would also like to thank Informations Forlag once again - and particularly Mette Jokumsen - for agreeing to publish this important book.

My biggest thanks must go to the Kassa family who have allowed a stranger into their home and have shared their thoughts and lives with me. I hope that your openness will make people in the richer parts of the world understand why they have to change their lifestyle.
